Conference Background, Description & Scope

The mission of the Scientific Conferences on Project Management (SCPM) is to facilitate communication between international multi-disciplinary teams. SCPMs provide a forum for the discussion of topics related to the development of new knowledge in project management and related disciplines.

Furthermore, previous experience with the International Project Management Association (IPMA) / Mediterranean Network (MedNet) creates new prospects and challenges for the promotion of Project Management profession, education, cooperation, organisational maturity and certification between European, Mediterranean and Arabic countries.

This conference follows on the 4th SCPM, hosted in Chios and organized jointly by the National Technical University of Athens and the University of the Aegean, the 3rd SCPM, hosted in Thessaloniki and jointly organized by the National Technical University of Athens and Aristotle University of Thessaloniki in September 2004, and the 1st & 2nd SCPM hosted in Athens in December 2001 and January 2003 respectively. National Technical University of Athens and Florida International University (USA) have also co organized the related CITC III Conference in Athens, in September 2005.

Academics, researchers, industrialists, professionals, policy makers, assessors, certification & funding bodies concerned with projects and programmes in every sector (construction, IT & telecommunications, public government, international &, EU projects etc) are, therefore, encouraged to participate and contribute with their knowledge and experience to the conference.

Main Topics & Conference Structure Project Management:

- Concepts, Techniques & Tools
- Current Issues, New Approaches & Case Studies
- Decision Making, Risk Analysis & Sustainability
- Cross-border Cooperation & Cultural Aspects
- Contract Management, Partnership & PPPs
- Information Technology & Information Systems
- Standards & Maturity Models
- Education, Training & Certification Issues
- Professional Issues & Ethical Codes
- Green project management & sustainability

In addition to the Main Conference Sessions, a number of Invited Tutorials, Special Sessions, Professional Sessions and Workshops will also be organized. Invited Tutorials are brief sessions by leading experts on a particular topic. Special Sessions consist of peer reviewed papers of research/academic merit. Professional sessions are based upon presentations (no full papers are required) moderated by the session chair on topics related to best professional practices. Finally, Workshops are based on a main presentation of the main theme by the facilitator and presentations of selected peer reviewed papers.

Publication Opportunities

All accepted papers will be published in the ISBN proceedings of the Conference (CD format). Selected papers will also appear in Academic & Professional Journals such as:

- Automation in Construction (Elsevier)
- International Journal of Construction Project Management (Nova Publishers)
- Built & Human Environment Review (Open Journal Systems)
- PM World Tomorrow (PMForum)
